Shaw's Sarsaparilla is without a single exception the best remedy ever offered to the public as a cure for all diseases arising from a state of blood impurity and disordered functions of the body. Its effect is always sure. It prevents eruptive tendencies. It cleanses the blood and the proper assimilation of food. It checks decay and ulcerative inclination whether of the lungs, kidneys or liver. It cures eczema, scrofula, eczema, skin eruptions, itchy scalp, indigestion, inactive liver, weak kidneys, nasal "catarrh," bright's disease, nervousness, general debility, sleeplessness, melan-chole, unnatural fatigues, loss of power, loss of memory, loss of appetite, loss of energy, etc., etc. Give it a trial and you will assist nature in her efforts to maintain health and strength until old age gently brings rest and quiet.

It is a common belief that all advertisements of medicines are gross exaggerations or downright lies. More than thirty years ago Dr. Shallenberger, of Rochester, Pa., discovered an Antidote for Malaria, and his medicine has had a large sale without newspaper advertising. Are the best months in which to purify your blood. During the long, cold winter, the blood becomes thin and impure, the liver becomes weak and tired, the appetite may be lost, and just now the system craves the aid of a powerful purifier. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted to purify and enrich the blood, to create a good appetite and to overcome that first feeling of uneasiness which comes every year, for it is the ideal spring medicine. My health was very poor last spring and seeing an advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla I thought I would try it. It has worked wonders for me as it has built my system up. FRAUD IN NEW JERSEY.

Democratic Majorities Swelled by Stuffed Ballots.

Once more the attention of the country is called to Democratic frauds at the polls. By the investigation which the committee of the Republican State Senate of New Jersey is making of the returns from Hudson County. Up to date the committee has finished examining the boxes in nine precincts of one assembly district, and has nine more to look over. The result thus far has been the finding of 324 bogus Democratic ballots and of 16 legitimate Republican ballots which were not counted at all. If the frauds continue in the same proportion in the other nine precincts they will vitiate the claim of Senator McDonald to his seat.

The scheme by which these frauds were perpetrated was carefully elaborated before election. The first move was to pack the registration lists, and this was done so thoroughly that on election day the registry books showed 27,308 names in the eight precincts of Jersey City, as compared with 28,291 at the Presidential election the year before. Then came the work of preparing what are known as "the little jokers." The Jersey bosses stamp and perforate the ballots as they are cast. This made the work of the stuffers very simple, as all they had to do was to run the ballots through another box or prepare them by hand, and then stuff as many into the legitimate box as they desired to make a majority or overcome returns from other parts of the State. Villains nearly always leave some tell-tale evidence behind them, however, and this was true of the Jersey ballot-stuffing Democrats. They neglected to have the ballots of the same size, and the work was done so bunglingly or hurriedly that the stampings and perforations of the stuffed ballots do not compare with those of the legal ballots.

Hudson County and Jersey City have always been the best of the New Jersey towns by which history to date has been carried by the Democracy. It is not necessary to resort to fraud to carry the county, as it undoubtedly has a legitimate Democratic majority, but it has been a convenient place to receive reports from any weak spots in the State and manufacture a majority to suit. How well they have done this a few figures will show. Last fall in that district Abbott (Dem.), candidate for the Governorship, had 27,323 votes, and Grubb (Rep.) 14,306, showing a majority of 13,017 for Abbott. In 1888 Cleveland had 27,009 and Harrison 19,440—majority for Cleveland, 7,569. The falling off of the Republican vote in Hudson County as shown by the Democratic officials as compared with the returns of 1888 was over 5,000 votes, while the Democratic vote was increased more than 200 over the Cleveland vote. In the whole State the total vote of 1888 was 303,741, that of 1890 was 269,105, and yet in a total vote which fell off 34,636 Abbott received 14,234 majority as against Cleveland's 7,149. What has occasioned this paradoxical business the investigation of the Senate committee clearly enough shows.

If such frauds as these were committed in a district which is legitimately Democratic what may not have been done in weak districts? Unfortunately the Senate committee can not challenge the result so far as the State or National results are concerned. It is due to Senator McDonald to say that he concedes the fraud and denounces it in unmeasured terms and offers to resign his seat, but this does not involve any penalty, since even if he resigned he would probably be re-elected. What is needed now is a sample of the much-talked-of Jersey justice for the Democratic officials of Hudson County, and after that some method should be devised by the Republican State and National committees to prevent the frauds in the future, for there is little doubt that Governor Abbott himself is the beneficiary of frauds, and that they were sufficient also to swell very considerably the vote of New Jersey for that eminent reformer, Grover Cleveland.—Chicago Tribune.

THE RULES ARE GOOD.

Hereafter the Majority Will Not Be Governed by the Minority.

The House committee on rules has made its report, after a long waiting, due to courtesy to the dilatory Democrats constituting the minority of the committee. True to their policy of delay, the Democratic caucus resolved to ask for "more time" to consider what they will do about the code of rules. It is fully in evidence that they do not propose to allow any business to be done by the House in which party questions are involved if they can prevent it.

Fortunately, the new rules, which will be adopted in spite of any opposition the Democratic members may make, put it out of the power of the minority to delay legislation by purely dilatory parliamentary tactics. The more important changes made over the old rules are as follows:

The Speaker will not be expected to entertain dilatory motions. The Speaker to decide what is dilatory. Providing for ascertaining whether there is a quorum present when the vote does not show one. This rule authorizes the Speaker to count members present but not voting in making up a quorum; it provides that the clerk, under the direction of the Speaker, shall note the names of members not voting, and hand the list to the Speaker to be read.

The elimination of motions to take a recess or adjourn over to a day set. When any proposition is under consideration not more than one motion to adjourn will be allowed.

Fixing a quorum in the committee of the whole (100 instead of 75), at present the whole committee is to be handed to the Speaker and by him referred under the rules, and not to be offered in the House, as has heretofore been the custom. By this rule bills may be introduced at any time.

The House calendar is to be dispensed with, all bills to go either to the private calendar or to a calendar—that is, the committee of the whole on the state of the union calendar.

Houses bills amended by the Senate to be taken up at once upon being returned to the House. The committee of the whole has the right to amend, to which an amendment shall be in order—that is, substituting some other bill which motion, if lost, the morning hour continues until the subject matter is concluded, without regard to the time consumed.

Every body must admit that the changes which put it in the power of the majority to avoid the waste of time by a factious minority, through all sorts of dilatory parliamentary tactics, is an improvement. Especially is the new rule to be commended which counts every member who is in the House as present, whether he sees fit to vote or not. To say that a man is to be considered as absent because, for partisan reasons, he refuses to vote, is simply an absurdity. The more common sense of the nation will endorse the adoption of this change, and the abolition of the senseless red-tape precedent which is of no value except as a means of delay and waste of time.

The Democrats of the House would be satisfied. They have asserted that the country was going to the demerol how-wow, and that the liberties of the people were in danger, because the House was proceeding under ordinary parliamentary usage, without special rules for specific cases. Now the rules are ready; let us have them adopted, that the representatives of the people may at once get down to business.—Toledo (O.) Blade.

THE SOUTHERN SHOTGUN.

It Goes Straight to the Heart of the Vexed Race Problem.

The Mississippi shotgun seems to possess certain qualities which are not shared by any weapon known to ancient or modern times. Other guns sometimes prove dangerous in the hands of young and inexperienced people, and frequently cause more trouble at the muzzle than at the muzzle. Other guns evince an occasional tendency to load themselves at inconvenient and unexpected seasons, so that those amateur humorists who point them at their wives and children may be able to successfully consume their innocent practical jokes. The toy pistol and the diminutive B. B. rifle show a persistent disposition to keep the male population within strict Malthusian limits. But the shotgun which has been evolved to its present state of perfection by the social and political conditions of Mississippi displays a clearness and discrimination of judgment which are absolutely unequalled. In all these considerations attempts to solve the race problem in which it is the principal factor it has never misfired.

When the smoke of the conflict clears away it is always found that its deadly execution has been exclusively confined to the Ethiopian race. This is the more marvelous because the negroes are always the aggressors, and are almost always in such overwhelming numbers that one would naturally be disposed to expect a slight addition to the mortality of the whites. In all these impromptu and amateur attempts to solve the race problem it is the younger representatives of the Caucasian race delight to engage, this weapon renders intelligent political service. It is sometimes puzzled to properly adjust those social and political differences that often arise between the two races. The Mississippi shotgun is never troubled with vexed questions of jurisprudence or political economy. With rare intuitive insight it goes unerringly to the heart of all sociological problems and humbly confines itself to the simple duty of reducing the black population.

It may be truly said that, in its perfect adaptability to the purposes of its creation, the evolution of the Mississippi shotgun is a most complete and perfect illustration of the soundness of that philosophy to which Herbert Spencer has given his long and useful life.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE RACE PROBLEM.

General Powell Clayton Before Boston's Business Men.

At the meeting of the Mystic Valley Club of business men at Boston General Powell Clayton, of Arkansas, discussed at length the Southern question and gave his ideas concerning its proper solution. He advocated the adoption of an educational qualification for voters and favored the Blair bill as a measure to bring the school-house within the reach of whites and blacks. Were the Southern leaders to adopt this plan instead of solidifying themselves for its resistance they would be in a better position to ask for Northern confidence and sympathy. Reciprocal social and business relations would foster migration to the South and link the two sections more closely.

On the other hand the leaders of the dominant Southern party must make Northern emigrants more welcome and treat them justly. In this connection General Clayton denounced the shameful Democratic election methods resorted to in Arkansas for the purpose of bulldozing and counting out Republicans, referring to the antipathetic testimony in the election contest case of Featherstone vs. Cate as his authority. Pulaski County, the largest in the State, one where the whites largely outnumber the blacks, and where the excuse of negro domination did not hold good, was an apt illustration of the causes of the reflux of Northern emigrants.

There the dominant party by frauds and bulldozing had kept a majority of 2,000 in the minority for fifteen years. Was it surprising that under such conditions men of Northern birth shake the dust from their feet and turn their backs upon their homes to seek homes elsewhere, where such methods and practices are not tolerated? Continuing General Clayton said:

"That page in the history of Arkansas, written in blood, growing out of the last Congressional election, into which these same methods and practices were carried, I dare not trust myself to speak. Mr. Grady, for the people he so ably represented, has asked you for your confidence, your sympathy, and that you will give them your sons as hostages. He has also asked you for your loyalty. For the people not represented by him, white and black, many of whom in battle upheld the flag of the country in the hour of its greatest peril, and many of whom, believing they were right, followed gallantly and faithfully the 'stars and bars,' and who now refuse to subscribe to the motto: 'The end justifies the means'—for all of these constituting, I believe, a majority of the Southern people, I ask your confidence. And for the widows and orphans of those who have fallen in a thus far futile effort to maintain the rights of American citizenship, and for the living who, under the most adverse circumstances, are still struggling in the path of the 'ATLANTIC' path. I, too, ask you to give up your sons, not as hostages, but as you gave them to the Territory of Kansas, where the same methods and practices were employed to force upon unwilling people the rule of corrupt minorities; and I ask you for that loyalty which at all hazards continues until the subject matter is concluded, without regard to the time consumed."

Every body must admit that the changes which put it in the power of the majority to avoid the waste of time by a factious minority, through all sorts of dilatory parliamentary tactics, is an improvement. Especially is the new rule to be commended which counts every member who is in the House as present, whether he sees fit to vote or not. —The grip has its humorous side, like almost every thing else. The result is an all-around happy family.

But a shadow fell across his bright prospects. It began with a trifling cough; soon came premonitions of consumption, his strength failed, his cheeks grew hollow, and he seemed doomed to an early grave. Then a friend advised Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He tried it and was saved. Health and strength returned, his cheerful voice rang out again across the school playground, his cheeks again grew rosy, his eyes bright. He is still "the pride of his class" and he graduates this year with highest honors.
